FULLER ATTORNEYS ADMITTED TO PRACTICE BEFORE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT

Presenting a case to the highest court in the land is a rare honor for an attorney. Only a very few lawyers have the opportunity to argue a case before the United States Supreme Court. Fuller & Fuller founder, Herbert Fuller, has appeared twice before the U.S. Supreme Court representing the State of Washington. Each lawyer who argues a case before the U.S. Supreme Court is presented with a ceremonial quill, and Herb still proudly shows his quills to his grandchildren.

On the 40th anniversary of the law firm, Fuller and Fuller attorneys Jay and Leonor Fuller were admitted as new members of the U.S. Supreme Court bar. They recently attended proceedings at the Supreme Court in Washington D.C. Jay Fuller, who has previously argued before the Washington State Supreme Court, said that being at the U.S. Supreme Court was like witnessing the Super Bowl for lawyers! Attorney Leonor Fuller has handled cases in the Federal Court system. She remarked that, “It’s one thing to read the opinions written by Justices of the U.S. Supreme Court. It’s another thing to observe the Justices as they asked one tough question after another. You could feel the tension as lawyers argued cases with high stakes in the highest court in the land.”

The U.S. Supreme Court receives about 10,000 petitions each term, but only hears about 100 of those cases.
